TUNGSTEN ORE BEING SHIPPED TO MILL

FIRST CARLOAD GOES FORTH FROM NOBLE PROPERTY NEAR SODAVILLE

The Atkins-Kroll company shipped its first carload of tungsten ore from the Noble property near Sodaville to the Del Monte mill at Bourla, five miles north of Luning. As stated in a previous issue of the Western Nevada Miner the Atkins-Kroll company a short time ago took over the mill, which is of the Chilean type, of the Del Monte Mining, Milling and Reduction company, and have converted it into a tungsten concentrating plant in which they will treat the output of their properties at Sodaville, says the Western Nevada Miner. The company has sixty men at work on the Noble property and is getting out ten tons of tungsten ore of a good grade daily and as soon as they can get the orebodies on their recently acquired properties sufficiently opened up they expect to increase their output to a carload daily. There is much activity around their camp at the Wheeling Gold Range, and with the numerous tents and buildings going up it looks like a real old time Nevada mining boom.

The company are certainly doing a great work in the way of stimulating the mining industry in the southern part of this county.

Some persons who are watching operation here, and are pessimistic of the future predict that the bubble will burst, but the Denver Post, which is in a position to know, says: "Manufacturers of projectiles and armor plate have found that the steel is hardened to resist shocks by adding tungsten. This last mentioned use in connection with the European war is said to have been responsible for the present high price of this metal. But many experts say tungsten is now used for so many purposes that it will never fall much in price, even when the war closes. From $10 a unit the price of tungsten jumped rapidly to $15 and $20." The present price is from $50 to $60 a unit.

ITALY THREATENED WITH COAL FAMINE

ADVANCE IN PRICE OF ANTHRACITE A SERIOUS WAR FACTOR

(By Associated Press.)

ROME, Dec. 9.—Coal is $40 a ton in Italy, and continues to soar. It went up $10 a ton in one week. This has become a serious, and might become a decisive, war factor, so far as Italy is concerned, for coal is the fundamental element of Italian industry and commerce, moving the railways, running the factories, and keeping up such public utilities as electric light and power plants, gas and water works, street railways and tramways, as well as for household heating and cooking, not only in Rome but all over Italy.

Such a phenomenal rise in the price of coal has never before been known. To Italy the shortage is serious chiefly because Italy possesses no coal mines of her own at home or in the African colonies, so there is no outlook for getting a supply except from abroad, and the foreign supply is in the hands of the enemy or taxed to its utmost capacity for its own needs. While there was no war Italy needed no coal fields of her own, as the French and Belgian fields were near at hand. But now the French coal fields of Pas de Calais, and those of Belgium, have passed into control of Germany, the ally of Austria, with whom Italy is at war. Similarly Austria stretches as a barrier between the Polish coal fields and Italy. So that about the only supply left for Italy is England, where the Welsh coal fields are hardly equal to the demand of England's own factories and navy, and her nearby ally, France, without also supplying Italy's needs. And so coal is mounting — $8 some time ago, then $10, then $15, then $20, $25, $30 and now $40 a ton.

As soon as the requisition for extradition can be obtained from Carson, he will be brought back to Elko to stand trial for embezzlement.
